TELEPHONE TALKS.

Believing that exact knowledge promotes cooperation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is publishing a series of brief expositions of some phases of telephony, for the benefit of itself, and, as it hopes, for the benefit of all telephone users.

THE ART OF TELEPHONING.

Every day some subscriber asks the New England Telephone Company what he can do personally to get the most satisfactory results with the telephone. The answer, put briefly in this "Art of Telephoning," is: Look up numbers before calling "centrally;" be prompt about answering your own telephone bell when it rings; take notes in speaking.

The necessity for looking up telephone numbers is obvious. With the rapidly increasing list of subscribers connected with each exchange, it would be impossible for operators to identify everybody's line from his name. Giving "centrally" the number you wish correctly and distinctly to start with saves time and errors.

The desirability of answering promptly is also evident. If the operator receives no response after ringing at regular intervals during a minute and a half or two minutes, she reports, "They don't answer." Upon a little investigation it is better to respond to the first call of the bell than to run the risk of losing what may be an important communication and causing the person who rings you up, as well as yourself, distress or annoyance.

Conversing well on telephone is something of an art, but it is easily acquired. To be able to talk clearly and agreeably over the wire is as valuable an asset in the business and social life as is good personal appearance in a face to face interview. Being invisible to the person with whom you are speaking, the impression you make depends very largely on the quality of your voice when it reaches the other end of the line.

In telephoning to a person in your own town you will get the clearest transmission if you speak in an ordinary conversational tone. In fact, the tone should be a shade lower rather than higher than that you use in ordinary conversation. For long distance talking the voice should be a little louder than it is when you are talking in the same room with you, but it should never even approach shouting, which causes the diaphragm in the transmitter to vibrate so fast that your words are likely to be jumbled when they are reproduced in the listener's receiver. If you cannot make yourself heard without too great an effort, signal your operator and she will do anything she can to remedy the difficulty.

Pronounce your words distinctly and not too rapidly. A telephone conversation generally lacks the pauses of face to face talk, so it should be slower to give a chance to catch the full meaning of each sentence. Above all, speak directly into the transmitter, with your lips close to the mouthpiece, and "speak" your voice, that is to say, do not "talk from the chest," which causes your words, but forces your breath from the mouth as you speak. The telephone instrument is designed to be used this way in order that it may be made to exclude, so far as possible the miscellaneous noises within a building or from a street. If your voice does not go directly into the transmitter it will not be repen-dered with full distinctness.

"Hook notes" are sometimes necessarily introduced in ways that affect their efficiency. They are likely to be "hooked up" properly if they are turned almost upside down in order that the speaker may be back in the mouthpiece as he speaks, for instance. The angle at which the instrument works back is fixed by the check screw at the top of the stand, which allows some adjustment. Furthermore, the instrument is made to stand on a desk, table, chair or some work surface, and when it is in use and will give you some idea of it as it is placed.

Moderately Frenzied.
The Club Women—You have no mind of your own, you say. You say you are one of those persons who think they think!

Only five hundred—You better see, now; I often hear that I imagine I only suspect I think—Think.

Divided Responsibility.
Mrs. Greenough—She seems to have been bitten when she attacked her driver.

Mrs. Park—Honorably. She had to take care of her children and she couldn't in the very best—Think.

Hard on Teeth.
Barnum—Didn't smoking diminish the teeth?

Robert—Oh, yes; my wife left her to the bathroom, where a tramp was smoking, and it didn't harm them!

THE MERCHANTS' EXCURSION.

Tuesday, the 26th of August, dawned fair and bright, and the hearts of the merchants of Bethel Falls were rejoiced, for a pleasant day meant a successful excursion.

Not long after 9 o'clock that morning people were assembling at the M.
C. R. R. station ready to take the train for Portland. At half past six a throng was there and at quarter of seven, when the Portland Falls Road came from the land room in full uniform and playing an inspiring march, the people began rushing into the station and boarding the cars, and in short order four of the six cars were filled.

There were young men and maidens, middle aged men and women, and men and women whose whitened hair told of age; but they were all happy and smiling and gaily chatting, one with another.

M. K. Day, Morris Marx, and H. L.
Metcher, of the committee, were dying hither and yon making arrangements for the comfort of the excursionists; and stepping now and then to say a pleasant word to the fair maid and patroness.
Not to be considered out of the running our good friend Naham Moore took a turn at buzzing a bevy of girls.

Quite a number joined the excursion at Dixfield and other stations. The trip was made without accident and a goodly number took the special electric cars at the Union station in Portland. The greater part of them also went on the steamer to the island. After arriving there they amused themselves as they chose until noon. There was a splendid dinner served and a large number enjoyed it. Not a few went back to the city and took the trolley cars for Old Orchard to see the relax.

The 26th of August, 1907, will be remembered as the greatest excursion day in the history of the Board of Trade and Merchants' Association of Bethel Falls.

Famous Women of Japan.

Women played an important part in the early history of Japan. To a woman, the Empress Jingu, belongs the glory of the first conquest made by Japan, that of Korea, A. D. 201.
Dressed as a man, she led her fleet over the unknown waters, across which she alone believed a country lay to the westward. "If we succeed," she said to her chiefs, "the glory will all be yours. I will be responsible for the safety of a possible defeat." The Koreans told their wealth at the feet of the conquerors and the king swore that so long as the stars shone and water ran down hills Korea should be faithful to Japan. This achievement of the Empress gave rise to the boast of the Japanese, "The arms of Japan shine beyond the seas." But the most important fruit of her victory was the introduction of Buddhism from Korea, as well as Asiatic art, science, medicine, and literature.
Jingu, however, was never actually proclaimed head of the empire. The first female ruler was Hatto, and since her time eight empresses have governed Japan, some of them with great wisdom.

London's Awful Smoke.

Mr. William Richmond, a well known member of the Royal Academy, made instances in unexpected directions to drive home his arguments in his laudable but hitherto unsuccessful campaign against the London smoke nuisance. Lecturing the other day, he told his hearers that in the late spring and early fall in London were caused entirely by smoke.
The water of London was also due to the smoke, for the smoke exceeded the sunlight and where there was no sunlight there was no color.
He went so far as to ascribe certain physical deficiencies of the poor to his poor air. Pleading that nothing could grow without light, he declared that poor girls were often toothless, while the tank men and retreating china so common among the poor had no color, for the smoke was largely due to the absence of light caused by smoke.

A HAY BARN.
Style of Structure Which Will Allow
of Easy Handling of Hay.

When a considerable quantity of hay is to be stored, the style of barn should be such as will permit easy handling both in unloading and re-loading. To store 60 tons of hay, with a 14-foot driveway between each bay and with 12-foot bays 15 feet deep, would require a length of 64 feet, the floor space would then be 32x64 feet, divided into two bays 12 feet wide, of four 16-foot bays each.

The filling can be expeditiously handled with the horse fork in two ways, explains Central Herald—first, filling each bay by itself from a carrier running lengthwise along the ridge of the shelter, dropping the hay in the center of the 14-foot space of that bay and filling this bay with one kind of hay; the second and third bays would be filled in the same manner, and the horse fork could be worked from either one or both ends as desired. If the first unloading is to be done by hand, the hay can be unloaded by driving crowsfoot, stopping the wagon opposite either of the 12-foot spaces or the 14-foot space.
If the center driveway is to be kept free for more expeditious removal of Plan of Barn.

the hay, the simplest and most convenient method of handling the fork is represented in the cut, where the hay fork is represented as working on a track suspended under the ridge of the roof, and running the full length of the barn. Beneath the forkful of hay is represented a tilting platform which, when inclined as represented in the cut, throws the hay on the right side; if tilted in the opposite direction, the hay would fall on the left side of the driveway; but if the tilting platform is not under the forkful of hay the hay would fall in the center. With such an arrangement as this, the hay can be delivered on one side or the other of the driveway, or it may be dropped in the middle, at the will of the operator on the bay, and hence the arrangement can be used equally well for entirely filling each bay of the shelter at once, and thus diminish the labor of distributing the hay, over what would be required if each fork-ful of hay was dropped at one place.

This tilting platform can be made in various ways—most simply in the form of a series of slats made of lath boards and carried on a central axis on which it turns. The length of the slats would be determined by the width of the driveway, and must be long enough so that the hay falls on the bay after sliding from it. The width of the platform should be in the neighborhood of 12 feet, and it should be carried on parallel tracks, as represented in the figures. A bar should connect each pair of rollers carrying the platform car, just below the rollers, so that as the platform is tilted it stays when striking this bar, causing it to deliver its load at the proper place.

THE "FARM GARDEN."

By Laying Out in Long Rows It Can Be Cultivated With Ease.

The many farmers think they do not have time to bother with so small a thing as a garden, says Coleman's Rural World. The women and children manage to get the seed sown, but the lack of keeping it clean is too much for them, and long before fall the garden is a sorry patch of weeds.
It is a mistake to think of the garden as a small thing, for if properly managed it will furnish half the living for the family during the summer months. By laying out the garden in long rows almost all the work of cultivating can be done with horse tools.
The modern cultivator can be adjusted so as to do almost the work of a hoe and an hour or two each week will keep the weeds down and the soil in the best condition for rapid growth. Another thing that will save much trouble is a chlorine light fence around the garden. Such a fence will pay for itself in a very few years.

New Growth of Berries.
Don't be afraid if the berries make a slow growth at first. It grows very slowly for the first month, and for this reason the seed bed should be as free from weeds as possible, before the berries need be put into the ground.

Running a Farm.
It takes time, labor and money to run a farm successfully. In return the farmer gets a good living. The farmer should be a good manager.
He should be a good worker. He should be a good neighbor. He should be a good citizen.

on a coat of

"Well, Jim, I know the Washington buying club. I know the Washington Club of my age. All I know I have to do for myself and am free to use it in any way I choose. I have gone over the deal with Benjahn Sanda and he has decided to purchase. She has a balance of about $400,000, and I am going to spread it thin. I am going to buy her 20,000 shares and take on 10,000 for myself. If you want in for 20,000 more, it would give me a wide sale to sell in. I know you never speculate, Jim, for the house, but I thought you might in this case go in personally."

"Don't say anything more, Bob," I replied. "This thing the rule goes by the board. But I will do better. I'll take up a million and you can go as high as 70,000 for me. That will give you a buying power of 100,000, and I want you to use my last 50,000 shares a little."

I had never speculated in a share of stock since I entered the firm of Joseph & Randolph, and on general principle I was opposed to stock trading, but I knew Bob had worked it out and that was the deal sure it was necessary for him to have a good reserve buying power to fall back on it, after he started, the "System" masters, whose game he was butting in to and whose plans he might upset should he shake down the price to drive them to their preserves. Bob knew how and ordinarily would have allowed me to have the short end of it. But so changed had he become in his anxiety to make that money for the foreigners that he grabbed at my acceptance.

"Thank you, Jim," he said, fervent-and he continued: "Of course, I know what's going through your head, and at I'll accept the favor, for the deal is bound to be successful. I know your reason for coming in is just to help out, and that you won't feel bad because your last $5,000 shares will be used more as a guarantee for the deal's success than for profit. And as your plays could not object to the art you sand, as she did at the unwrapping, for you will get a big profit anyway."

Next day sugar was lively on the exchange. Bob bought all in sight and

The closing stock street, Dow Jones had 79,000 shares, which averaged 318; Bob and I had 50,000 at average of 125, and the stock had risen 135 bid and in big demand. Sanders 79,000 showed $24,000. I, while our 50,000 showed $11,000 at the closing price. All the time with Washington wires were scrambling for sugar as soon began to jump. And it certainly was as though the shares were good the Bureau set for them by Feb., at which price the Sands' profits had been $1,000,000. Bob was beside me with joy. He died with Kate and as if as I watched him my heart stopped beating at the thought of something like happen. I said his place! His happiness! Heathen to witness. He was like me. He threw away all the reserves past three months and laughed over graves by turn. After dinner we sat in the library over our tea he leaned over to my wife and

DINNER FOR FOUR

DAINTY REPAST THAT CAN BE SERVED FOR A DOLLAR.

Careful Planning and Proper Preparations All That is Needed for This Correct and Satisfying Meal.

A dinner for four is a modest enough undertaking for the little bride knows a thing or two about cooking, but

To start with, a simple outline of the menu could be something like this: Savory tomato soup, followed by lamb chops, with mashed potatoes and string beans, an apparatus salad for a third course, and the desert of strawberries.

In making the tomato soup for the first course, it is possible to utilize small portions of cooked vegetables, which may be on hand. If there are few beefed roasts in the menu, the string beans, and another portion of peas or other vegetable, they will make a good beginning. Add to them two raw onions finely chopped, and a handful of minced parsley, together with a couple of ounces of butter, and a teaspoonful of salt and pepper. After these ingredients are well stirred together, simmer for five minutes, add a pint of hot cream and season with a teaspoonful of allspice and a tablespoonful of sugar. Cook slowly for a half hour and then strain through a fine sieve. Thicken the soup with a teaspoonful of cornstarch, mixed with the same amount of cold butter. Serve the soup garnished with small strips of fried bread.

For the meat course have the lamb chops broiled to a perfect brown and serve them on a pretty platter, or better still, a chop plate, with the potatoes arranged in the center. Stand the peas up around the mound of potatoes.

The string beans should be broiled until tender and drained. Cook for two or three minutes in a little butter and cream and serve very hot.

The asparagus for the salad should be cooked in salted water and then cut into pieces an inch long. Chill for several hours on the ice and serve with a dressing made of the grated yokes of two hard boiled eggs, beaten with three tablespoonfuls of oil, the same amount of vinegar, a tablespoonful of salt and the same quantity of French mustard.

Three strawberries for dessert may be served with sugar and cream, or may be cooked in little tarts and served with a spoonful of whipped cream on each.

Maple Transparency.
Place an iron frying pan on the stove and heat. Put one-half cup butter and one-half cup sugar in the pan and melt. Add one cup of maple molasses. While this is cooking break in four fresh eggs, not beaten, and stir sufficiently to prevent the eggs from cooking in a mass. Cook for five minutes until the mixture is dry and transparent in the frying pan and is transparent to the fire and light. Then remove from the fire and let stand while you line the pudding dish with a paper napkin. Deep pudding dish with a paper napkin. Add one cupful of juicy fruit to the transparent mixture, pour into the pudding dish, and bake. Taste. It is best, such as cherries or raspberries, but any leftover will do so.

WIT AND WISDOM

"We never repeat of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is harmful for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol Food Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by H. S. Pushbar, W. E. Hoesserman.

This image shows a vertical strip of dark, heavily textured material, likely a book binding or a piece of aged fabric. The texture is grainy and uneven, with many small white specks and fibers visible against the dark background. The strip is set against a light, speckled background. The overall appearance is that of a close-up, high-contrast photograph of a worn surface.
